

Katherine Graham is professor and dean of the Faculty of Public Affairs at Carleton University, where she also served as associate dean of public affairs and management from 1998 until 2002. From 1992 to 1996, she was director of the School of Public Policy and Administration at Carleton. Dean Graham's interests are in the field of public policy and the management of government, including policy and program evaluation. She has focused these interests on local government, Aboriginal policy and civic engagement. She has served as an advisor to all three levels of government in Canada and to governments abroad. She is also an experienced facilitator, having served in this capacity for Heritage Canada, Justice Canada and the Canadian International Development Agency, among others. She serves as an academic resource to the Aboriginal Leadership Institute and the Canadian Bureau for International Education.

Click here to visit the Tamarack website for more engaging content! www.tamarackcommunity.ca